beautiful industry that the present article is written. This revival of the art after a cessation of nearly a century has been effected by the exertions of the Countess Adrian Marcello and the Princess Giovanelli Chigi. These two ladies, who to their other graces add the charm of far-seeing charity, opened a school for lace-making in 1872, under the special protection of Queen Margaret, to whom they are ladies of honor. Several specimens of old Venetian lace were found in the possession of an aged woman of Burano named Cencia Scarpagliola, who had wrought them in her youth, and who "awoke one day to find herself famous." In spite of her great age she was made directress of the work-room, being the only person competent for the office, and more than two hundred girls have been taught by her. The most important work they have yet completed is the reproduction of the laces of Pope Clement XIII. Rezzenico, born in Venice in 1693. The originals are in the position of the queen who, with the generosity that distinguishes her, lent them to be copied by the Fifteen workwomen accomplished the task in two years' time. One piece of lace, three metres long and fifty-five inches wide, valued at 6,000 francs, was exhibited by the Burano school in Paris in 1876 .- Century Maga-

Nations are never sane or insane, but individuals are. But how are we to given time? The only way it can be done is to take the individual's whole life into consideration, ante and post natal, and from all these facts determine whether or not the particular act involved in discussion is in keeping with the acts of sane men under the same circumstances. In other words, the acts of the person whose insanity is questioned must be squared by that general sense of sanity which is supposed to rest somewhere in the mind of the community. No certain criterion exists. Each case depends upon its own circumstances.—Indianopolis Herdld.

It would be impossible to enumerate the persona quiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.
With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion, at his residence on St. Paul street, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?" "Every one of them and many additional
